NORTH CHINA is sending four great armies against the Cantonese, who think they should run the country, and throw out foreigners. The big armies are picking their way South by different roads, and bad roads.

Think what it would mean for those Chinese generals if they had five millions of the twenty-two million automobiles running in the United States, and roads such as we have here!

And think, especially, what it would mean if those Chinese of the North had a big flock of flying machines and pilots to run them!

AN INTELLIGENT Britisher named Ponsonby, who has been lecturing here, sometimes talks about war, and says the next war will be different from all others. Instead of interesting fighting men only it will affect and menace every man, woman and child.

LIFE TERM DEMANDED OF JURY FOR TURNER

By BERT FORD
(Staff Correspondent of the Boston Evening American)

Portland, Me., Feb. 11.—Pale and sullen, his eyes smouldering from out the shadows of close-drawn brows, Benjamin H. Turner "the man from Mexico," sat today in court and heard clamced verbally for him the door of a life prisoner's cell at Thomaston.

That was what Attorney General Raymond Fellows demanded as punishment for the confessed slayer of James D. Hallen at Falmouth Foreside, in the prosecutor's final argument at the murder trial.

The case was given to the jury this afternoon, with a possibility that Turner might know his fate by nightfall.

While his own senior counsel, Judge Joseph E. F. Connolly, a

JAPANESE BACK MOVE TO REDUCE BIG NAVIES

Tokio, Feb. 11 (A.P.).—Rengo, the Japanese news agency, learned officially today that the Japanese government already has decided to accept the proposal of President Coolidge suggesting a new conference for the reduction of naval armament, and it is expected a reply to the President's message will be forwarded to Washington soon.

It was understood Japan, in its acceptance of the Coolidge proposal, would state that at present she has no plans or specifications for an armament reduction, feeling that such agreements and plans should be left to the naval experts of the various powers concerned.

Furthermore, it was believed the attitude of the government in accepting unconditionally would be directly opposed by the sentiment of the navy department.

It was understood that Japan

Edison, 80, 'Will Work Until Eve of Funeral'

West Orange, N. J. (I.N.S.).—Feb. 11.—Thomas Alva Edison, electrical wizard and the world's foremost inventor, regards the phonograph as his greatest achievment. He said so himself today in his annual symposium of views given on his eighty-eth birthday.

Edison announced his views on the subject of immortality had not changed. That is still as much of a secret as the spark of live, he said.

The inventor added that the word "God" meant nothing to him, but he did believe a supreme intelligence guides the world.

"I intend to remain in the harness until death," he declared. "I will not quit until a few days before the funeral."

As the octogenarian inventor talked with a group of newspaper men who crowded his laboratory, his

TONS OF DEBRIS FALL IN FENS AS WORKERS FLEE

Crashing down with a roar and impact that blew out the front wall and shattered windows in stores nearby, 60 feet of ceiling in a 100-foot concrete building being constructed in Jersey street, the Fens, collapsed today.

Fifteen men, working in the basement, were saved from death only by the floor that held up the many tons of broken concrete, although the force of the blow sagged and trembled the thick floor.

TURNER'S PROSECUTOR DEMANDS LIFE TERM AS WARNING TO GUNMEN TO SHUN MAINE

shared that Turner had a "kink in his brain" and therefore was not responsible, the prosecutor called upon his men and women jurors to return a verdict of first degree murder.

"Let us not by our action in this case, serve notice to the gunmen of Chicago, New York, San Francisco and Mexico to come to Maine," said Attorney General Fellows.

FOR MAINE'S GOOD NAME.

"Let us loom but not doom Maine."

He branded Turner as a conscientious objector and draft dodger who fled in shame from killing animals but who, nevertheless, had no compunction in killing two humans.

"The two involved in this dark tragedy," said the Attorney General, "Hallen and Turner, had great mental attainments and promise, if they had used their ability along the proper channels.

"Our State of Maine stands farther advanced than most civilized communities in that it doesn't believe in the State taking life, let alone an individual.

"Pity has no place in this case at court. Pity is a noble, God-given attribute from which the blessed rain of justice springs, but it was meant for the wronged and not for him who does wrong.

"If Mrs. Haskell had not been an eye witness across the street, self defense would have been advanced and so they had to resort to insanity as a last resort. All crime is the result of mental perversion. Such may be the act of a normal man, but thank God it is not the act of the ordinary man or our streets would be filled with dead.

KILLING ADMITTED.

"The fact of the killing is admitted and, as the respondent pleaded insanity, it is his duty and burden to prove that he should be excused by reason of insanity.

"The fact that Turner felt he was morally right has nothing to do with the case. He knew he was legally wrong and Dr. Tyson so testified.

"Many persons feel they have moral right to sell liquor though they realize that they have not the legal right. You were told that Turner did not go hunting because he did not believe in killing animals. Something was said about pests being exercised in his code. It might be all right to kill skunks unless the law forbade.

"I find no brief for Hallen. Whatever were his characteristics he was a human being. I don't want any man to decide when it is time for me to die.

"Turner had it drilled into him in his early life that it was wrong to kill, but he feels that he is the law. Mr brother, in spite of his eloquence, could wrap the folds of virtue around this conscientious objector who had avoided the draft because, he thought, when that war was in progress?" added counsel for the defense, 'when we recall how our citizens have been insulted by the very peoples to whose rescue we hastened and who refused to pay their indebtedness for the money and men we gave them?

"You will recall that many supported the late President Wilson because he kept us out of the World conflict so long.

Attorney Connolly rehearsed the tortures undergone by Turner in a Mexican prison, infested with rats and vermin, when he was compelled to eat dirty food and sleep on the floor with hundreds of pests.

"He left the army," added counsel, "not because of fear or cowardice, but because he felt he could not serve in a war that he did not believe in and which many have since changed their minds about.

"He had seen conscientious objectors horse-whipped and fed on bread and water in a border camp conducted by persons different than those of his home town. That is why he fled into Mexico.

MENTAL TORTURE.

"The mental experts said they didn't think the prison tortures affected his mind, but you and I cannot begin to sense what he suffered and the resentment born of it.

"When his father died before he could reach him, it was then that Turner made up his mind to wreak vengeance on Hallen.

"Nobody can convince me that a young man who kills and then telephones to the police felt he had done a wrong. He wanted to tell his story, firm in the conviction that the police would uphold his act.

"The alienists told you he was a young man of high moral and religious standards who believed in doing what he considered right at any cost.

Send in Clothing to Aid Chilled Maynard Kiddies

Youngsters in the mill town of Maynard, innocent victims of unemployment, are without proper food, clothing and heat. BOY IN CREEK AND HIS TWO "RESCUERS" SAVED

Burke hauled out the boy, hauled out Daniel Lyons, who had gone to Charlie's rescue, and dragged out Michael Breen, who had attempted to rescue both after they had become numb—only to become numb and powerless himself.

When he had laid the rescued out on the ice he revived the three and they were taken into shelter, allowing Burke to go back to his forge and anvil.

Young Charlie who lives in Green street, Hingham, and Buddy Cox of Water street, his five-year-old chum, took advantage of the new fall of snow to go coasting, but Charlie's sled slowed, throwing him into the water.

cold and hungry and improperly clothed; parents unable to provide for their brood—this is the picture of the town of Maynard.

These people need help. And at once.

The town's industrial plant is practically at a standstill. Men work only one day a week. They get $5. Many support six, eight and eleven children on that amount.

Superintendent of Schools Jerome O. Fogwell issued the appeal for food and clothing for the boys and girls who come to his school, not for study, but for warmth.

If you are charitable and wish to help, send whatever you have for girls and boys and mothers and fathers to the City Editor, Boston Evening American, Boston. He will see that it is distributed promptly.

Into five rooms of dismal squalor and drab darkness are huddled the Crotty family of thirteen.

Michael Crotty is willing to work, but like the rest, he can't get it. Mrs. Crotty rises out a bare existence on $5 for these thirteen people.

"Leon had to wear rubbers to school. He has no shoes," she murmured. "From four quarts of milk a day we manage to get by on one. The baby is only sixteen months, too."

Just around the corner in Pine street, the Green family, including six children, exists under lamp light, without running hot water, under a bare ceiling.

And still they smile.

"It wasn't always like this," Mrs. Green said.

Over her head hung the family wash. She sat in a small, barren kitchen with her husband and two daughters, Mary and Margaret.

The other four were asleep. For lack of something better, she said, it was always wise to let them sleep.

At the Westcott home the family was huddled about the stove.

"Trying to keep warm," they smiled.

The afflicted live in various sections, including Florida court, River and Railroad streets, Pine street, Mill street, Powdermill street, Sudbury and Vernon streets.

It is the same story throughout the town. Whatever money there is, and that is little enough, must be expended for food, leaving nothing for clothing for the children. Conditions are indescribable, the torture of poverty has stricken them so.

Sent to school fit subjects for pneumonia and its allied infections, Superintendent Fogwell has enlisted the aid of the school nurse and doctor to care for the youngsters.

The White Cross Guild also is helping.

CARNIVAL GIRL RULES HANOVER

Hanover, N. H., Feb. 11.—The Carnival Girl burst out in all her finery today in preparation for the major dance number of the annual Dartmouth Winter celebration tonight.

Interrupting for a few hours the continual round of tea dances, dancing at the fraternity houses, dancing on the ice and snow and even dancing to dinner, the intercollegiate ski meet took place on the Ditch Hill course today while hundreds of Carnival Girls looked on. Clad in scarlet, green and pure white, the girls with escorts lined the course and cheered competitors.

After the ski performances which included some of the prettiest work seen on the slats during the carnival the girls and their boy friends adjourned to Occum pond where again the performers entertained them, this time on the runners, in figure skating competition.

The last athletic event of the day was the swimming meet with Yale at Spaulding memorial pool. The early evening was spent at Webster Hall where the Players appeared in "The Chocolate Soldier."

Poiret of Paris could learn something from the line of evening gowns displayed by the Carnival Girl here. Poetry has been written in the college publication about this Carnival Girl's eyes and smiles, but tonight her beauty will be enhanced by her prize and special gown.

U. S. TAX, FINE BILL SHOCKS BOOTLEGS

With fifty individuals shocked in Worcester through receiving demand for Federal taxes and fines as a result of their liquor charge convictions, it was announced at the office of the Prohibition Administration in Boston today that similar demands will be made all through New England excepting Connecticut.

Each individual in Worcester convicted of doing an illegal liquor business has been sent a letter by its H. Swearingen, attached to the fine of Prohibition Director Parker informing the recipient that he owes the Federal government just $4,-384.50.

This sum constitutes a tax for a liquor business, doubled for its willfulness, penalty for failing to make return of occupational tax, a tax as a retail liquor dealer, doubled, and a fine.

At his office today, Swearingen said he has been in Boston for fifteen months laying the foundation for the drive now under way.

Within the next week, he said, at least 1,000 such notices of indebtedness to the government will be sent to convicted liquor sellers and runners in all New England states except Connecticut, which is not in this district.

Already several thousands of dollars have been received from individuals who got the first batch of notices, Swearingen claimed.

If the individuals against whom the government is moving for liquor taxes and penalties, do not pay up the money demanded, the government will bring suit against them, according to Swearingen.

AGREE COUNTRY HAS PLENTY TO DO AT HOME

Bostonians prominent in public life today received with enthusiastic expression of satisfaction the announcement that the United States is now virtually free forever from World Court entanglements.

"The back door to the League of Nations is shut! Let's be thankful.

This was the tenor of their utterances as they commented on the success of the campaign to get the United States into the court.

THEODORE A GLYNN, former Representative: The founders of our nation never intended that America should ally herself with any foreign power. They felt that America ought to hew closely to the principles that they laid down and under no consideration enter into agreements binding us to policies that would shatter forever our ideals. America is more interested in her own welfare, that is, the welfare of her own people—than in any alliance that would belie the noble principles for which our early patriots shed their blood.

SENATOR GASPAR G. BACON: While I emphatically oppose the entrance of the United States into the World Court, I believe, however, that we should consider carefully any future proposition or terms which may be presented by foreign powers.

COUNCILLOR MICHAEL J. WARD: I am glad to know that our country will continue to abide by George Washington's immortal admonition to America to keep clear of foreign entanglements.

JOHN F. FITZGERALD:—This is a delicate and important matter. Civilizations have been destroyed before and it is within the bounds of possibility that it will occur again. The United States should keep this in mind. I strongly believe that America should not be involved in the affairs of other

FITZGERALD AT 64 BOOSTING FOR BOSTON

It was the same John F. Fitzgerald who awoke this morning proud claimant to 64 years and sang his famous "Sweet Adeline" in celebration of a happy birthday.

The same spry, alert, alive yodler who 22 years ago campaigned for a bigger, better and busier Boston in his election to the mayoralty of the city.

No doubt that it was "Johnny Fitz," 64 and at his best.

Felicitations, many and varied, poured into his home in Welles Avenue, Dorchester, and the former Mayor signified to all his happiness of the day, his thanks and his great joy in the future of Boston.

He didn't retire until late, but he was up today on schedule time armed to the teeth with complete knowledge of New England's curse and remedy.

"The hand-on jobs have been New England's curse," he began. "We have only awakened to the realization that there can be no progress without the selection of brains and not the selection by pull and family tree. Incompetent sons of the rich took positions in the mills and factories organized by more efficient parents.

"We are now beginning to realize that without recognition of brains in the ranks, or without, New England's industries will go on the rocks. However, the sign is hopeful.

"I might take this time to commend the notable work of the Boston Evening American in its boosting of New England. Its work has been wonderful.

"It is a great satisfaction on my birthday to realize that twenty-one years ago I pleaded for a bigger, better and busier Boston. I remember then calling attention to the complete ignoring of brains.

"It is my desire to have the schools and colleges of New England take up the problems of these States and debate their minds, instead of discussing outside issues like the World Court, Locarno and Armenia."

HAMLIN HEADS ALL U. S. DRY INVESTIGATORS

Washington, Feb. 11 (A.P.)—Philip Hamlin of Quincy, Mass., today was appointed chief prohibition investigator, succeeding Vincent Simonton, who has been transferred to the position of assistant head of the prohibition local department.

Hamlin has been assistant administrator in charge of prohibition enforcement in New England, with headquarters in Boston.

Hamlin left Boston for Washington last Sunday night, and will head the "under cover" department of the prohibition enforcement bureau.

It will be an important part of Hamlin's work to investigate the activities of prohibition officers.

Hamlin is the prohibition official who, according to court testimony of Prohibition Agent Walter H. Sullivan, recently instructed Sullivan to receive bribes from men accused of operating a still on Elmhurst Farm, North Wilmington, as part of a plan to trap suspects.

Chief of Police Walter A. Hill and Joseph Brennan, both of Wilmington, were tried in connection with a seizure at the farm, but Chief Hill was acquitted while the jury disagreed in Brennan's case.

Capt. George A. Parker, federal prohibition director for the New England district, appointed Hamlin as his aid in charge of investigations on October 10, 1925.

Previously Hamlin was in charge of the Chicago Bureau of the Department of Justice.

SMOKING AMONG CO-EDS IS "MATTER OF COURTESY"

Berkeley, Cal., Feb. 11 (A.P.).—Smoking among co-eds at the University of California is a "matter of courtesy" and the problem for solution is how smokers may indulge without annoying those who dislike the weed.

Lucy Stebbins, dean of women at the university, defined the status of the cigarette in a formal statement to the student body, in which she declared that smoking was not a question of ethics or convention, but rules of courtesy should prevail.

RADIO CONTROL BILL IN PERIL

Washington, Feb 11 (A.P.).—Radio control legislation admittedly is in a dangerous position in the Senate.

Final action on it at this session—adoption of the conference report already approved by the House—appears now to depend almost solely upon the ability of leaders to wear down the opposition at night sessions.

The compromise bill written by House and Senate conferees has been sidetracked until after the vote on the McFadden branch banking bill late next week, but proponents then will seek to make it the unfinished business.

Meantime, opponents will confer to map out their program with their leader, Senator Pittman, Democrat, Nevada, who said today that the exclusion of the provision in conference permitting each State to have its own wave length convinced him that a private monopoly was the purpose sought.

Senators are being deluged with telegrams for and against favorable action.

During the course of the long exchange of conversation a reporter asked Ford if it was true he was the richest man in the world. Ford said he did not know of his own knowledge. He only knew what he read in the papers.

Edison received hundreds of cablegrams, radiograms, telegrams and letters congratulating him upon his attainments and his good health at 80.

He read some of these as he talked. The aged inventor was in fine health and excellent spirits. He chuckled at some of the questions or at side remarks and appeared to enjoy the rapid fire of interrogations as much as any one else. He was never at a loss for an answer.

Facing a veritable barrage of questions upon every subject Edison sent forth his views and opinions in the following crip sentences:

"The world is no rearrer today than it ever has been in solving the mystery of the spark of life.

"I think highly of the training camps established by the government which are proving decidedly valuable and beneficial to the citizens of the country.

VIEWS ON IMMORTALITY.

"I do not look for any radical change in the present distribution of electricity unless we solve the problem of cold light.'

"Experimenting has given me the greatest pleasure in life. It is great fun to pull facts out of the great unknown.

"I wish to be remembered as the inventor of the phonograph.

"My belief in immortality has undergone no change. The reading of an interview given by me upon the subject was misconstrued.

"I proposed that, to get some reasonable data, that every known fact in favor of immortality should be put in one column and every known fact against immortality put in an opposite column. Then in time we might find in summing up 56 per cent. in favor and 44 per cent. against. As it is now we have no data.

ALL SHOULD MARRY YOUNG.

"The word God has no meaning to me, but I believe that there is some supreme intelligence guiding the universe.

"Yes, I believe every man should marry and marry young.

"The future of the motion picture is onward and upward.

"The theatre—the legitimate stage —will continue if no important improvements are chronicled in motion pictures.

"No man can predict what this life will be 50 years from now, nor the changed conditions among the masses.

"Bolshevism is a menace to the United States and every other country.

"Democracy works fairly well where the people are fairly intelligent."

One reporter asked Edison how Henry Ford could ever dispose of his enormous wealth.

WEARS OLD BLUE SUIT.

As Ford was present all listened for the reply with eagerness, but were disappointed as the inventor said he had no comment to make, never having given the subject a thought. The Edisonian views and opinions continued:

"Yes, I believe that President Coolidge ought to be renominated and re-elected.

"I think that the fact that Governor Smith of New York is a Catholic might mar his chances.

"A man should retire from active work a few days before his funeral.

"A man is at the height of his productiveness at forty-five.

"Crime will diminish when it ceases to pay.

Edison wore the same old blue suit on his birthday he wears in his workshop every day. On the other hand, Henry Ford was immaculate in a gray suit with the trousers sharply creased.

HIS "BILLION-DOLLAR SMILE."

Before the questioning began Edison and Ford posed for photographers.

"Give us a billion-dollar smile," shouted one photographer at the conclusion.

Ford laughed heartily and the reporters then turned their guns on him.

Asked what he thought of life and, if he had the opportunity, he would live it over again, Ford replied:

"I have ha l lots of fun and expect to have lots more. I did not know I was the world's richest man. That is news to me. I have heard it said before, but never fully realized it.

"A rich many can find [illegible] of good to do with money. I have heard I am a billionaire. That may be. I only know what I read in the papers. I place no value upon money."

Ford was asked about a cablegram printed in the morning papers quoting Queen Marie Rumania as saying that Ford would rebuild Bucharest, the Rumanian capital. The following are answered:

"If one [illegible] Queen Marie that [illegible] will build a new capital for her. It often makes people happy to think things."

Edison Says Facts Favor Belief in "Immortality"

East Orange, N. J., Feb. 11 (A.P.).—A small percentage of all the facts known about nature favors immortality, Thomas A. Edison, wizard of Menlo Park, said today on his eightieth birthday.

"The word God has no meaning to me," he said, 'but I believe there is a supreme Intelligence pervading the universe, and at times I believe that when a man dies, the swarms of billions of highly organized entities which live in the cells, desert the body, go out into space and keep on and enter another and last cycle and are immortal."

Hint Ford May Leave His Two Billions to Education

West Orange, N. J., Feb. 11 (I.N.S.).—Henry Ford, whose fortune is estimated at $2,000,000,000, may leave his vast riches to education, it was intimated here today.

"What are you going to do with your fortune?" the manufacturer was asked at the Edison Laboratory, where he was making a birthday call upon Thomas Edison, who is 80 today.

"I think education is the greatest force in civilization and the most deserving of help," replied Ford. But beyond this he refused to say more on the subject.

Ford admitted, however, that he was making plans for the distribution of his fortune.

ASK PROBE OF PHONE 'LAYOFF'

posed probe has not been forced to take a leave of absence, in spite of the fact a company vice-president said the leaves were forced on all employe-legislators during the legislative session.

It was learned Representative William L. DuBois, Republican, is still acting as manager of the West Uxbridge telephone exchange while active in the Legislature. DuBois, who is also a clergyman, declared today his employment by the telephone company did not influence his vote against a telephone investigation.

The two Representatives who were placed "on leave" after their vote for an investigation are Maurice Tobin and Thomas Carr, Democrats, of Boston. Minority Leader Edward Kelly of Worcester planned to introduce an order similar to Crockwell's, but refrained from doing so because Crockwell, being a Republican, may have more influence on the measure.

Crockwell's order calls for a thorough investigation by the Department of Public Utilities of the "telephone company's policy with respect to its employes who are elected to public office in the service of the Commonwealth, or any county, city or town." It asks a report by the department to the Legislature not later than March 1.

Both Representative Kelly and Representative Anthony A. McNulty, the man who introduced the original telephone investigation order, will vigorously support Crockwell's order when it comes before the Legislature.

15 FACE DEATH IN FENS CRASH

standing after the choking dust had cleared away and the men in the building had hurled themselves from windows and through doors.

Immediately upon arrival with building inspectors, Fire Chief Daniel F. Sennott began an investigation of reports that cracks in the building had been complained of during construction.

QUIZ IS STARTED.

Chief Inspector Edward W. Roerer of the building department made an examination of broken pieces of the concrete pillars that had supported the section that collapsed. He took samples and these were sent by Building Commissioner Louis K. Rourke to Technology for analysis.

The building commissioner summoned to his office for a hearing at 2 p. m. the licensed builder in charge, Henry J. Bateman of Harbor View street, Dorchester, and the owner of record, Mary Costello of No. 27 School street.

Plumbers and electricians were at work in the basement and in the other two sections, but no workman was in the centre section at the time of collapse.

W. E. Sharkey of Walworth street, Roslindale, a glazier, had the most narrow escape from death. He was carrying a big pane of glass to the centre section and was about to pass through the door into that area when dust and debris sprinkled him, there was a roar, and the roof shaved down only scant inches in front of him, covering him with a white mantle and tossing him backwards.

HEARS RUMBLE.

His glass shattered, but he gave no thought to this in his prudent scramble for the outside safety. Shaskey said he first thought a boiler had exploded.

Joseph D. Samson of Newton street, Malden, a plumber, was working in a section that did not collapse. He heard the preliminary rumble, then the crash and roar, and without waiting to recover his tools fled through a rear door of his section.

In the adjoining section Sam Sholk of Howard avenue, Roxbury, an electrician, was working.

"I was fixing some pipe in back," said Sholk. "The first thing I knew the window behind me blew out and I didn't lose any time. There was a roar and a lot of dust, and as soon as the window went out, I went right after it."

BARBER'S CLOSE SAVE.

Abe Fisher of Homestead street, Roxbury, a plumber, was at work in the basement, directly under the collapse region. He said that the impact seemed to strike him for a second, then he noticed the floor and ceiling over his head were trembling.

Covered with dust and choking in the thick swirls of the cellar, Fisher found the cellar window and scrambled out to the air.

Another narrow escape was experienced by Harry E. Guerriero, a barber, who had planned to open a shop on the Boylston street end of the wrecked building tomorrow.

Guerriero was inside the structure planning the placing of fixtures when the collapse came.

"Suddenly the building shook," said the barber. "There was a great noise. A window in front of me bent and broke. I opened the door and ran across the street just as the roof fell in."

SEES MEN FLEEING.

Walter Ceyfis, a newsboy who sells at Jersey and Boylston streets, was directly opposite the collapse section. He said:

"There was a crash in the back of the building and the roof looked as if it was sliding toward the front. Part of the front wall fell and then the roof slid down in the middle.

"Then the front wall leaned out some more and fell. I saw ten or twelve men come out of the building from all parts."

TWO HURT AS AUTO RAMS STORE DOOR

Two men, one the driver of an automobile and the other a pedestrian were injured today when the driver Robert Moorhead of No. 534 Centre street, Jamaica Plain, drove his machine against the door of a store to avoid striking another car according to police of Station 1 West Roxbury.

John Gist of No. 23 Glenville street West Roxbury, was pinned against the door. He was taken to the office of Dr. Thompson and treated for bruises of the left knee and elbow and abrasions on the left side of the head. Flying glass caused deep gashes in Moorehead's left eye and chin.

HALTS 'L' TRAIN; FOILS DEATH

When hundreds of workers were thrown from their seats by the sudden stopping of a tunnel train at Winter street station today they didn't realize that their momentary discomfort had had a part in saving a man's life.

Just as the train from Everett speeded into the station, Phillip F. Halley, 53 years old, of No. 31 Concord square, fell into the tunnel pit directly in the path of the train.

Train Operator Thomas Doherty applied all the emergency brakes, bringing the train to a stop inches from where Halley lay. The man was uninjured.

"Guilty" — Doris Amends — By Jean McDonough

I HAD PHONED TO LITTLE JANE Davis from the prison. We found her at my home when we got there. She stood in the doorway unable to believe her eyes. Then suddenly she ran forward and threw her arms about her father's neck. "Daddy," she cried delightedly, "I knew everything would come out all right. Miss Alton promised me it would."

HE ASSURED HER THAT IT WAS. That seemed to satisfy her . . . she skipped over to me. "Miss Alton," she said, "how can I thank you for being so good to us?" "Please don't," I replied. "Just to see you so happy again, here with your father, repays me. But, really, Jane, I had very little to do with it. Mr. Edwards is the person who helped your father."

I TOOK DAVIS OVER TO A corner of the room. "What [illegible] I do," I asked, "to make things [illegible]?" "It is for you to decide," he [illegible]. "I know that you will be fair." [illegible] that he would be paid his share [illegible] his invention and asked [illegible] would like to enter the [illegible] of my father's plant.

IT WAS LATE NOW AND WE had had a strenuous day. Charles and the Davis family prepared to go. There was a jolly leave-taking. When they had gone I fell into happy meditation. How fortunately things had turned out. It was pleasant to be free of doubts and worries once again . . . to know that all was right.

SAY COOLIDGE INJURES DRIVE ON PRIMARY

By JAMES T. WILLIAMS, Jr.
Editor Universal Service.

Washington, Feb. 11.—Is "The Power of Silence" in the White House in regard to 1928 hamstringing the country-wide movement to abolish the direct primary in general and the Presidential primaries in particular—a movement in which Vice-President Dawes and Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler are among the leaders?

"Yes" is the emphatic answer of some Senators and Representatives in Congress who claim the Dawes-Butler preference for the convention system as a nominating agency and this is the way they argue:

Unless President Coolidge can be persuaded or goaded into making an announcement within the next few months that he will not accept a renomination, there will not be time enough to get a "favorite son" movement going that will leave the control of the next Republican national convention by delegates tentatively committed for holding purposes only to alleged "favorite sons."

Unless the next Republican National Convention is controlled by those who head the "favorite son" delegations, its control will pass to delegates elected in presidential primaries and pledged to support the first and second choice of the people as expressed directly at the polls.

Enemies of the direct primary believe that such a national convention, provided its nominees were successful in the ensuing election, would end all hope of abolishing the direct primary.

Every day that President Coolidge declines to tell the politicians of his party what he intends to do about the 1928 nomination increases the difficulty, it is explained here.

This conforming of the silence in the White House in regard to 1928 also leaves the way open for one of the presidential primary states to start the ball rolling by electing delegates pledged to Coolidge and Hoover as the Republican ticket for 1928.

Unlike Vice-President Dawes, President Coolidge, it is realized here, is not an opponent of the direct primary. Therefore, it is hard to be expected that President Coolidge will be in any hurry to assist the drive against the direct primary.

Mildred Sad for Lita in Chaplin Battle

By MILDRED HARRIS

(Copyright, 1927, by Mildred Harris. Reproduction whole, or in part, prohibited.)

Mildred Harris in her story of her life with Charlie Chaplin today discusses Lita Grey. She is sorry for the wife, who is now battling Charlie in the courts.

Charlie Chaplin's favorite author was undoubtedly Edgar Allan Poe.

He read his stories many times, probably attracted by a certain similarity of temperament. He read Oscar Wilde's books and plays. He liked Mark Twain better than any other modern author.

He not only read all his stories, but I think he read the four-volume biography by Paine that contains such a wealth of anecdotes, conversations of Mark Twain and philosophy not in his stories.

Charlie Chaplin read a great deal, however, and all sorts of books. His library was very large and is probably now much larger.

(Note by editor: Mildred Harris was asked whether Charlie Chaplin had ever told her about a boyhood sweetheart in London while he was still in his teens.

The girl's mother thought he was too poor to marry. Miss Harris said she once heard him refer to that incident briefly. She asked him to tell her more about it. But he did not tell the details.

SHE WAS OLDER

The story, as told to one of his business associates, was this: When he was eighteen or nineteen, and earning not more than $10 a week, he fell in love with a girl a little older than himself. The girl's people were in moderate circumstances, and her mother forbade Chaplin even to talk of an engagement, as he was not able to support a wife and perhaps never would be.

Charlie and the girl parted more or less in tears, and Charlie was still an obscure and ill-paid vaudeville actor when he came to America in 1910, at the age of twenty-one. He made very little progress on his road "from rags to riches" as long as he remained on the spoken stage in vaudeville.

There were thousands of variety actors who could "do a turn" as well as he. But the camera magically revealed one day his genius. His insignificant, almost pathetic life changed almost overnight from poverty and obscurity to riches and world-wide fame.

MET BY LORD MAYOR

He had left London in 1910 an unknown actor of twenty-one, poor, unappreciated, constantly seeking employment. He returned to England for the first time in 1921 after his great triumphs in the United States.

It was his first vacation in years. To his amazement he was greeted at the foreign dock by the Lord Mayor of Southampton, who delivered a formal speech of welcome in the presence of a delegation from the City Council. The special train to Waterloo station, London, was met by a crowd of more than ten thousand people.

Charlie Chaplin was escorted by mounted police through vociferous crowds filling the Strand and blocking traffic to the Savoy Hotel, where a royal suite (much to his dismay) had been reserved for him.

In the next few days he was commanded to meet the King and Queen of England at Buckingham Palace.

AGAIN IN PARIS

A week or two later a similar parade attended his arrival in Paris, where he received the decoration of the Legion of Honor at the hands of a French Cabinet Minister, who, as is customary, kissed him on both cheeks after bestowing the decoration.

During his short stay in London —according to the story told at the time by one of his associates— Charlie Chaplin went again to the little barber shop in an obscure corner of London in which he had once worked. After diligent and sympathetic inquiry, he found the address of the woman with whom he had been in love in his teens. He went to call on her. He found her the wife of a barber and the mother of five children.

AFTER HIS DIVORCE

Charlie Chaplin's progress from "Rags to Riches"—the poor boy who come to be honored by kings—probably has no more interesting episode than this. But his disinclination to talk about himself or to indulge in reminiscences made it impossible to get further details.

The incident happened after his divorce from Mildred Harris. Charlie Chaplin is quoted by one of his business associates as saying at that time: "Isn't it singular that when I wanted to marry I couldn't because I had no money. Now when I have all the money I want, I don't want to be married."

I am sorry for Lita Grey, not only because she has been disillusioned, as I was disillusioned, but because she must be wondering and worrying about these babies of hers. And knowing Charlie Chaplin's passionate devotion to babies as I do, I am sure he is very unhappy now.

HE HAS LEARNED

I do not know Lita Grey. I have never met her. But I know that Charlie doubtless believed that he could make her happy, as he believed he could make me happy.

Charlie's attitude toward a home has changed in the last few years, I am sure. He loves children so much that I believe he has come to see that children and a home go together. Probably he has learned a great deal in these last years.

Love of home was certainly not a characteristic of Charlie Chaplin then.

Home was more a convenience to him than anything else.

So far as money and material things go, Charlie Chaplin never neglected me. He would provide well for his wife and his children. He would love his children and think of them, but his wife—well, that would depend on his mood.

Domestic responsibility entered into Charlie's life to a very small degree. It was not wilful neglect, I think, as simply failing to remember that it takes two to make a marriage and two to make a home.

Perhaps it is the same way with children. He loves children, but does not understand the responsibility of a family. He wants children to play with him. To watch and enjoy. If our baby had lived, everything might have been different.

Tomorrow Mildred Harris, in her final chapter, sums up her life with Charlie Chaplin and tells sympathetically why the life of such a genius cannot be happy.

the next war they will drop 10,000 bombs and wipe out entire cities.

They will find our American cities quite ready to be wiped out and thoroughly unprotected, if they come in this direction.

WILLIAM DURLAND, president of a great riding school, roaring, says the automobile will never replace the saddle horse. Nevertheless, the saddle horse will vanish, and be only a memory to children of today's children.

When the musket came in, men thought it couldn't take the place of bow and arrow. And, of course, it couldn't possibly replace the hawk that rode out on its owner's wrist and flew up to bring down the game bird.

The horse will linger on farms for a while and then disappear, as farming becomes really scientific, work that requires three hundred days of the farmer's time now, will be done in about forty days or less. And the "horse" will be a machine, run by gas, electricity or wireless power.

BABE RUTH simply won't play baseball any more unless they send him a better contract than one he just received. It gives him only $52,000 a year, which is pitiful when you consider how hard he hits the ball when he does hit it.

That is barely two thousand dollars a week, and gives him only a few months in the late Fall, Winter and early Spring for other money earning.

THE THOUGHTLESS may point out that Babe Ruth gets, in one year for hitting that ball, about a thousand times as much as Milton got for writing "Paradise Lost." That is no argument. For one American that wants to read "Paradise Lost," at least a million want to see Babe Ruth play baseball.

THAT THE WORLD COURT was dead, for this country, almost everybody knew as soon as some Senators were thrown out of the window. Even the World Court die-hards realize that the whole thing is ended now and admit it.

Britain refuses to accept terms on which we foolishly consented to enter the Court and submit our affairs to a bench packed ten to one against us. Even Senator Lenroot doesn't think this country will offer to modify its World Court reservations. Let's hope it won't. If it does, Heaven help Senators that vote that way.

WILLIAM ROGERS says kings have no jesters now, because they don't need them. In his speech at the opening of Parliament King George said: "My relations with China are friendly and I have dispatched warships there to express my good feeling."

That sounds like saying: "My relations with the rats are friendly, and I have put 'Rough on Rats' in the kitchen to prove it."

HOWEVER, the King has no more to do with sending warships to China than have the mice in the cellar of Buckingham Palace. The British have a real democracy, with the King for a convenient ornament.

Premier Baldwin writes a speech and the King reads it.

Smart Gowns Feature Tenth Night of Boston Opera Season

Pearls in ropes, necklaces and dog collars were noticeable as the most popular jewels of the evening at the opera while severe lines in smart gowns were much in evidence.

Whites and rose tones with dark wraps were the general color combination with here and there a splash of blue or turquoise as maids and matrons strolled between the acts.

Notable among the various groups were:

Mrs. Robert Treat Paine:
Paris gown of oyster white velvet, its svelt draping held under cabochon of pearls and brilliants. Pearl necklace, diamond sautoirs. Several bracelets, pearls and diamonds. Wrap of seal lined with ermine, and having narrow ermine tie scarf. Satin shoes with large crystal buckles.

Mrs. Charles Fanning Ayer:
Gown of Nile green chiffon velvet. Corsage of gardenias. Wrap of seal collared in ermine. Long necklace of pearls.

Mrs. Robert Treat Paine, 2d:
Wrap of peacock blue velvet with seal collar. Gold shoes, and gown of black richly designed in steel sequins. A pearl rope and diamond hair ornament.

Mrs. Lawrence Townsend:

Mrs. Arthur L. Richmond:
Gown of gold cloth, severely simple in design, strapped in brilliants. Wrap of gorgeous crimson velvet, deeply fringed in silk and shirred across the shoulders.

Miss Elizabeth Stackpole:
Soft grey velvet, a rose poised at one shoulder. Pearl necklace and ear studs.

Mrs. Sidney W. Winslow, Jr.:
Wrap of rose velvet, printed in dull gold of oriental inspiration. Gold brocade shoes strapped in silver, and gown of metal brocade.

Mrs. Alvan T. Fuller:
White lace girdled in silver. Several diamond rings, and a bracelet of diamonds.

Miss Joan Higginson:
Green chiffon velvet designed in silver gilt threads. Nutria wrap.

Mrs. Henry Parkman, Jr.:

MOZART'S 'DON GIOVANNI' SCORES GREAT TRIUMPH

By MOSES SMITH.

One of the greatest treats that can be offered a music-lover—the Mozart masterpiece, "Don Giovanni"—was presented at the Boston Opera House last night by the Chicago Opera Company. The production was in the nature of a revival, for Mozart's great work had not been seen here in years.

So great was the interest in advance that this opera was the first to sell out, which it did weeks ago. Even Wagner's "Tristan," which had been eagerly awaited, had to yield the palm to "Don Giovanni."

Mozart cast his work into the form of an opera-bouffe, but his genius transfigured it into a tragic music-drama. Those who go to hear beautiful arias will be satisfied, for the score teems with lovely melodies. But beneath the surface the music is intensely suggestive of the characters and action, and it is this suggestion that makes the opera the masterpiece it is.

Naturally the first interest of most of those present last night was the music itself, and only secondarily in the quality of the performance. The Chicago company, however, had assembled a formidable cast, including many of the best singers of the company. It was veritably an all-star show.

The performance was a fairly good one, in which there was much good singing. Although there was an occasional attempt to burlesque, the singers, as a whole, were effective in this respect. What was most lacking, however, in most of the voices was the serious spirit of Mozart, and this pall lay over the whole performance, whatever Giorgio Polacco at the conductor's desk might do.

Vanni-Marcoux was the Don, filling the role neatly. Vocally he was not quite up to the part, but what matters it? He is an artist. Charles Hackett as Ottavio sang beautifully one aria, for which he was roundly applauded, and otherwise he performed perfunctorily.

Rosa Raisa, in the role of Donna Anna, was uneven, suffering from poor intonation. Her tones at their best are glorious, but she could not sustain her brilliance last night.

Edith Mason, who was cast as Zerlina, sang beautifully, and played the role altogether admirably. And Pavel Ludikar, who sang the role of Leporello at a day's notice because of the illness of Virgilio Lazzari, seemed more familiar with his part than anyone in the company. Louise Loring, a Providence singer, made a successful debut as Donna Elvira. In his two brief appearances Alexander Kipnis sang gorgeously.

A word ought to be said about the settings, which were in the modernist manner. The main outlines of a single set served for all ten scenes, with lighting working most of the changes. The experiment was highly successful. Apparently we are learning from the Russians.

Sidelights

—By FRED TOYE—

"There's certainly a fascination about all this," said a visitor back stage, climbing through piles of trunks in the dressing-room corridors. Singers and managers chatter in one one of half a dozen languages, shifting from one to another without effort or second thought.

A brand new pink-cheeked fireman stood guard on the stage during Carmen. A dozen girls produced cigarettes, struck matches and started to puff in the wings. The alert smoke-eater was quick to warn them of the fire laws. "It's in the act," said a manager, and the ladies backed into a corner, his face the color of the proverbial suspender. "Gosh, I gave pulled a bone that time," he murmured.

The central box of the grand tier is equipped with six silver-gray upholstered armchairs. In all the other boxes are the regular straight-backed chairs. The box in question is that of Mrs. Hinckley Welch, who arranged with the management for permission to place the more comfortable furniture in the balconies which she and her guests occupy at every performance during the two-week season.

HARVARD OPENS NEW $2,000,000 ART MUSEUM

The new $2,000,000 art museum at Harvard University was officially opened for the first time, a class in fine arts having its first lecture there.

The new building, at Quincy street and Broadway, has an appearance of splendor and magnificence when compared with sombre lines of Emerson and Sever, the other buildings in the college yard in which lectures are held.

SENATE VOTES ON FARM BILL

Washington, Feb. 11 (A.P.).—With the Southern Democratic vote still in doubt and speculation rife as to whether President Coolidge will sign it, if passed, the McNary-Haugen farm relief bill faced the Senate today for approval or rejection.

Another day of debate on the measure was promised in the House, which expects to reach a vote some time next week.

In the Senate, conferences were continuing in an effort to smooth out differences as to whether the bill's equalization fee to control basic crop surpluses should be withheld from cotton for two years.

That the measure was a vehicle to place Frank O. Lowden, former Governor of Illinois, in the White House, was contended in the House by Representative Tincher, Republican, Kansas.

Representative Aswell of Louisiana predicted the President would sign the bill. Then place it before the Supreme Court, where it would lay awaiting interpretation as to its constitutionality until after the 1928 elections.

In the Senate, Senators Moses, New Hampshire, McLean, Connecticut, and Wadsworth, New York, Republicans, opposed the bill.

ENDICOTT JOHNSON PAYS $420,000 BONUS

Binghamton, N. Y., Feb. 11 (A.P.).—The Endicott Johnson Corporation distributed by check a bonus of $420,363.07 to approximately 15,000 shoe workers who will share in the profit-sharing plan of the corporation. The bonus was distributed among shoe workers in Binghamton, Johnson City, Endicott and Owego, and the amount was based on 52 weeks' work, the maximum being $50.68.

GARY WILL NOT RETIRE, HE ANNOUNCED TODAY

New York, Feb. 11 (A.P.).—Elbert H. Gary, chairman of the United States Steel Corporation, announced today that the question of his resignation had never been discussed or considered, setting at rest public rumors that he intended to retire this year.

Woman Who Builds Up $2,000,000 Business Says It's Terrible

New York, Feb. 11.—Twenty years ago Mrs. Alice Foote MacDougall had an invalid husband, three young children and just $38. Her husband had been a coffee broker so she started selling coffee direct to consumers.

Then she opened a stand for coffee and waffles. Now she has a chain of restaurants with a business of more than $2,000,000 a year and has just signed a lease on one place at $50,000 annual rental for twenty years.

But she thinks it is "terrible" for a woman to be in business.

THEATRES MUST PURGE PLAYS, SAYS ANGELL

New Haven, Ct., Feb. 11 (A.P.).—If the community may insist that "physical sewage be properly disposed of in ways not menacing to health, it is equally justified in protesting against the pollution of its sources of moral decency," President James Rowland Angell told the three hundred men and women from 23 States gathered here today for the conference on drama at Yale University.

"One must admit that any institution that touches so intimately as does the theatre the life of our people, and especially our youth, must comport itself with some regard to the accepted canons of decorum.

"The community will not indefinitely tolerate the parade of social filth for purely mercenary motives, nor will it allow the urge for so-called self-expression to indulge itself in indecent exposure of diseased or obscene impulses. These things may flourish for a time, but they always lead to a reaction which is destructive to the finest and most enduring uses of the theatre."

The conference, the second of its kind, opened a two-day program. The delegates represent the non-professional drama, but many of them are regarded as leaders in the profession.

"We would be relieved if the stage would call to mind the opprobrium that our forefathers cast upon it, and mend its ways," said President Thomas S. Baker of Carnegie Institute of Technology, who called the first conference a year ago in Pittsburgh. "Essentially, the improprieties that are complained of are breaches of good taste, and the public is at fault quite as much as the producer. Until the audience refuses to sanction vulgarity, the law will do but little to correct the public's pastimes."

Five Rebels Executed

Mexico City, Feb. 11 (I.N.S.).—Five more rebels have been executed at Colima, the War Department officially announced today.

TELLS OF 'WINE DINNER' IN WAR BRIBE CASE

New York, Feb. 11 (I.N.S.).—Richard Merton, German metal magnate, resumed the stand today at the trial of Harry M. Daugherty, former Attorney General of the United States, and Thomas W. Miller, former alien property custodian, charged with conspiracy, and described a champagne dinner which preceded his payment of [illegible], the alleged bribe on which the prosecution is based.

Merton said the dinner occurred at a New York hotel on Sept. 30, 1921 and that on the next day he gave the [illegible] to the late John T. King, Connecticut politician.

The money was paid in return for the approval of a $7,000,000 German claim for warseized property, and was alleged by the government to have been split between Daugherty, Miller, King and Jess Smith, a friend of Daugherty's.

The prosecution then introduced into evidence an expense voucher signed by Miller showing that he made a trip from Washington to New York on the day the now famous dinner took place.

FINDS WIFE IN POOL OF BLOOD AT HEAD OF STAIRS

Westerly, R. I., Feb. 11 (A.P.).—Hearing a shot, Albert B. Smith, Jr., investigated and found his wife, Mrs. Vera [illegible] Smith, 26, in a pool of blood at the head of a flight of stairs today. Mrs. Smith, who had just returned from a hospital, had apparently shot herself because of despondency over continued poor health. Police say Mrs. Smith's mother killed herself in much the same manner.

UNITED DEMAND FOR FORE RIVER DEEPENING

Without a dissenting voice, Fore River interests today petitioned the Army Engineer corps at the Customs House for deepening of the Fore River channel from the present twenty-four feet to thirty feet with a uniform width of 300 feet.

Representatives of the Cities Refining Company, Navy Department, Edison Electric Illuminating Company, Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corporation, Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway Company and Wilson Marsh, chairman of the Quincy City Planning Board, representing Mayor McGrath, were present.

W. A. Hamel of the Cities Service Refining Company said that his tankers were greatly delayed, due to the present comparatively shallow water.

Questioned by Major F. K. Newcomer, army engineer, Hamel refused to promise improvements in his plant or to place more help should the project be approved.

Captain Joseph I. Kemp, pilot for the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corporation, said that hardly any modern vessel could be taken up the channel without undue risk, unless a high tide was available. He cited a recent delay of the steamship Plymouth lasting forty-four hours.

Commander Clinton D. Thurber appeared for the navy, his chief interest being in the removal of the U. S. S. Lexington, now at Fore River. He added that Commandant Andrews instructed him to say that any project of the sort in favor of commercial interests was favored by the Navy Department.

ASK 150-FOOT LAW FOR ELECTION STICKERS

Representative Lewis R. Sullivan of Dorchester today urged the Committee on Election Laws to report favorably on a bill amending the election laws so that anyone passing out stickers on election day would be compelled to stand 150 feet away from the polling booths.

Sullivan explained that the amendment would place the sticker candidate and the man who received the regular nomination on the same footing. The latter is now restricted to the 150-foot distance. There was no opposition and the committee took the bill under advisement.

LISBON UNDER MARTIAL LAW

Lisbon, Feb. 11 (I.N.S.).—The restoration of normal life in Lisbon was proceeding slowly today following the collapse of the revolution.

Many business houses in both Lisbon and Oporto remained closed, the proprietors fearing further disturbances.

The government continued arresting persons connected with the revolt. The city is under martial law.

During the fighting here the American minister, Fred M. Dearing, took refuge in the home of Secretary Benton after the legation building had been repeatedly struck by rifle fire.

Paris, Feb. 11 (A.P.).—Advices from Lisbon report that Major Americo Olavo, former minister of war, was assassinated by the revolutionaries.

The number of dead in the fighting at Lisbon, according to the Havas correspondent, is estimated at 198. At Oporto, where the revolt started, the deaths are estimated at 76, with 360 wounded.

$50,000 BEQUEST IN '80 WORTH A MILLION NOW

Philadelphia, Feb. 11.—Dr. William Curran died in 1880 leaving land then valued at $50,000 in trust, eventually to be devoted to the education of females. It is worth more than $1,000,000 now and three institutions are seeking the money.

SEPPALA LEADS IN 2D LAP

Ashland, N. H., Feb. 11 (A.P.).—Ten dog teams swung out today on the 52-mile stretch from here to North Conway, which is the second day course of the New England sled dog club's race.

Leonhard Seppala was the first away, at 9 a. m., with Arthur T. Walden and Walter Channing following at five-minute intervals.

The starting line was on the bridge over the Squam River. There followed a short dash through the town, a sharp swing into the Holderness road and then a steadying into a pace which during the day would carry them ever deeper into the White Mountains.

All teams got away without incident except that of Francois Dupuis, jovial Quebec driver, who made the best time yesterday. Unexplained trouble caused him to cut out one of his seven dogs just after the start.

DORCHESTER WORKER BEATEN NEAR HOME

Asserting he had been set upon and beaten by two men as he was entering his home in Charlotte street, Dorchester, Hyman Kofman, forty-eight, a capmaker, reported his injuries to police at Station 19 today.

He said he worked for a Washington street concern where a strike had been declared and had been threatened with bodily harm if he continued to work.

PRAISE DEATH OF COURT

nations, if it is able to keep out of them.

COUNCILLOR GEORGE F. GILBODY—The news of England's refusal to accept our reservations should make all Americans cheer for joy. Adherence to our own principles in foreign affairs is as important as our Declaration of Independence.

COUNCILLOR MICHAEL J. MAHONEY—I am well satisfied with the death of the plan, for if American boys of today have to go to war in future years, it will be to fight for their own country and not to settle the quarrels of European governments and rulers.

COUNCILLOR WILLIAM G. LYNCH—It is a good thing. We have troubles enough of our own on this continent without meddling with the affairs of the nations across the Atlantic. Open the pages of European history and what do you find. From time immemorial almost, nothing but a succession of conflicts stirred by Emperors and Kings. They're always scrapping—England, France, Italy, Germany and all the others. We are happy, content and fortunate. Let's stay that way.

Thousands Guess Why South Station Clock Lost Its Hands

Two hundred and twenty-five thousand people—or those who travel to and from the South Station—are wondering why, when and how the clock in the center of the station had its hands amputated.

This important time-piece, which warns commuters when to quicken their pace to catch a train and whether or not they have time to buy the evening paper, cigar, or get a bracer of coffee, is sick with a broken spring and the hands were removed so that no one would be misled as to time.

A day or two more and the hands will be replaced and 225,000 people will be happy again with the return of one of the most important clocks in Boston.

COOLIDGE PUTS TEST ON EUROPE

basing its acceptance on three premises, first that foreign minister Shidehara had expressed to the diet Japan's intention of furthering additional equitable disarmament in every way possible; second, Japan's financial and economic condition makes further disarmament most welcome as a relief from tax burdens, and, third, Japan feels her international responsibilities make necessary wholehearted co-operation with other powers for armament reduction.

Some of the newspapers are antagonistic to disarmament extension to a point under the 5-5-3 ratio. Officials were said to believe, however, that the acceptance would be approved by the diet.

The Kokumin editorially opposes application of the 5-5-3 ratio, declaring if such a plan were effective Japan's national defense would become meaningless.

Washington Expects Britain's Compliance

By GEORGE R. HOLMES,
International News Correspondent.

Washington, Feb. 11.—President Coolidge's bold move for a new arms conference has applied the acid test to Europe's sincerity in the matter of further limitation of the world's great navies.

Now, it was said today by officials of this government, the world will see whether Europe's protestations in favor of reduced armament are genuine, or whether they are mere platitudes, without meaning and effect.

It was France that prevented the Washington conference from limiting cruisers, submarines, destroyers and the rest of the naval auxiliary craft now proposed to be dealt with at Geneva. The French in 1921 would consent to no limitation on the number of her submarines, so long as the British navy was permitted to have two and a half times as many capital ships. Italy, too, was recalcitrant on that point, although not so positive as France.

Franco-British relations have not materially improved since 1921, and a tradition to revive the glories of the ancient Roman empire, with the Mediterranean as its base, is an ambition that France has regarded in recent years with distinct distrust and misgiving.

If France and Italy now accept the Coolidge proposal—that auxiliary naval craft be limited generally along the ratio fixed by the Washington conference—it means that both countries accept, probably for all time, a position of naval inferiority to the three principal naval powers of the world, the United States, Great Britain and Japan.

The President's move came as a complete surprise, it was indicated today, not only to Europe but to Congress as well. The bigger navy bloc in Congress announced today, however, they will not abandon their fight to add three cruisers to the American navy immediately.

League Shown Up as Futile, Says Von Tirpitz

By S. DUNBAR WEYER
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Berlin, Feb. 11.—Germany, ever ready to endorse any measure for disarmament that will bring other nations down to her own level of war-making ability, is prepared to endorse President Coolidge's new disarmament proposals.

"President Coolidge's proposal should be welcomed by all powers sincere in their desire to limit armaments," said Admiral von Tirpitz in an exclusive statement to the International News Service. "The President's clear-cut proposal shows up the League in all of its futility.

"While the League talks, President Coolidge acts.

"For month's the 'wise men of Geneva have been talking their heads off upon theoretical subjects such as how to change a French army of four million men into 365,000 men."

The views expressed by Admiral von Tirpitz were echoed in other quarters, and those hostile to the League of Nations welcomed the proposals as a severe rebuke to the League.

France Fears U. S. Will Use Debts as Pressure

By HARRY R. FLORY,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Paris, Feb. 11.—The French government today declined to make any comment on President Coolidge's disarmament proposals until it has consulted Great Britain and Italy and the Cabinet has given consideration to the matter.

A widespread impression prevails here that President Coolidge intends to exercise pressure through the debts owed the United States to force France to accept the proposals. How far such a measure would succeed is problematical.

Geneva Sees Anglo-American Pre-Arranged Plan in Move

Geneva, Feb. 12 (I.N.S.).—President Coolidge's new disarmament proposals are regarded here as a pre-arranged Anglo-American plan, although there is some surprise over the possibility of Great Britain having entered into such a proposal.

JACK, THE GIANT KILLER, MISSED THIS BIG ONE

MAYBE THE BEANSTALK WAS TOO SHORT!
In any event, here's a "giant" out of a job and he's a whale for work, too! He is William C. Vaillancourt, 6 feet, 10; a war veteran, and the littlest newspaper photographer in captivity, Lester McLellan, of the Boston Evening American, is telling him something. Vaillancourt wants a job on a farm. He lives at No. 12 Centre street, Amesbury.

'Out of World Court! Thank God,' Says Roosevelt

New York, Feb. 11.—"Thank God we are out of the world court! Blessings on all those who yanked us out and kept us out of the league of nations!"

This was the gleeful exclamation of Theodore Roosevelt. He said:

"I can perhaps best express my pleasure at the news from Washington by quoting to you from the speech I shall deliver at Hartford:

"'The corner stone of our diplomacy is the statement of Washington that the U. S. must make no entangling foreign alliances. This has been held by extreme isolationists as a warning against any association whatsoever with foreign countries'."

KISSES BOY WHO MASQUERADES AS A GIRL

Worcester, Feb. 11.—Albert Hogue, fifteen, has been kissed by a policeman in an alley, punched on the nose by a wrathy admirer who discovered his deception and arrested as a runaway.

Albert, who is a bit precocious, has been mincing about town for ten days, dressed in his sister's clothing, even to the fluffies, according to the police, who notified his parents at West Boylston street.

What made the general situation all the more comical for Albert was that the cop who kissed him and patted his cheeks affectionately in the alley had his description jotted down in his notebook.

It wasn't so funny for the patrolman today, even though Albert would not reveal the petting policeman's name or number.

Albert's sister and her best clothing have suffered before through her brother's pranks. The pastel-hued fripperies and the other spirited little garments that go to set off sister's ensemble for street wear in a breeze haven't stood up so well under the stress of male mileage.

But this time Albert dusted for ten days, leaving his own habiliments behind him for the use of a scornful sister, if she wished them.

She didn't.

He was arrested in a photographer's studio in Chandler street, where he was a picture in himself.

The police say when Dad gets him home his position will be negative.

Hazelton, Pa., Feb. 11 (A.P.)—If a man is entombed in a coal mine for eight days is he entitled to pay for two shifts of eight hours a day or three shifts?

This question has caused a dispute between the United Mine Workers and the Lehigh Valley Coal Company. It arose out of the entombment for eight days of five miners in the Loomis colliery by a flood.

Andrew Mattey, district president of the workers, announced they had been paid for two shifts a day without notification.

He maintains the men are entitled to twenty-four hour shifts and said that if the claim was not adjusted it would be taken to the anthracite board of conciliation for a ruling.

Earlier in the evening we listened to the Metropolitan broadcast. Del Castillo at the organ played a characteristic medley. This was coming out of WNAC and sounded almost as good as when we are at the house. In fact, the organ playing has such an individual and unique transmission that only a few seconds listening are needed to identify the source.

Then the Musical Clubs from M. I. T. were let on for a selection. While the boys are good we do not believe they are versatile enough and have had enough experience to adequately entertain the countless thousands of non-college listeners. Musical Clubs are organized as much for social purposes as for musical purposes and when the clubs act for fond parents and beautiful college girls almost anything will go over.

In contrast was the Zipper program [illegible] tuneful and peppy. [illegible] for which we [illegible] the Pilgrim [illegible] quartet [illegible] which was coming from WBZ [illegible] good fashion. [illegible] right was good.

Charms of Music Cause Tunney to Miss His Stage Act

Seattle, Wash., Feb. 11 (AP) —Real evidence of Gene Tunney's interest in the arts was given last night.

After the heavyweight champion had failed to appear for his vaudeville act, the theatre management started a search for him.

The boxer was found at a Symphony Orchestra concert listening to Schubert's symphony in B minor. He explained that he had become so absorbed in the music that his theatre engagement completely slipped his mind.

Think Hahn Can Defeat Wide

New York, Feb. 11 (AP)—Although track experts here agree that Edwin Wide of Sweden is a great runner, they believe he will be beaten in an indoor mile race by Lloyd Hahn, fleet distance star of the Boston A. A.

Commenting on his first indoor appearance, they point out that Wide is experiencing the same difficulty encountered by Paavo Nurmi in rounding the sharp armory turns. Hahn, on the other hand, is a finished indoor performer whose six successive victories thus far indicate he is in peak form for a duel with Nurmi's conqueror.

THOUSANDS OF NEW RECIPES

—yet this single old-time recipe is today the most widely used in history

Where did you get the recipes you like best? Every week, every month women in the United States are testing new recipes by the hundreds and thousands. Yet today, by far the most popular of all recipes in the entire country, is one perfected years ago by a southern mammy.

Before the Civil War the news of Aunt Jemima's tender, golden-brown pancakes spread to other plantations far and near. But only her master and his guests could enjoy their wonderful flavor. She would not tell a soul how she mixed the batter for her cakes.

Today her own ingredients, proportioned exactly as she used them, come to you ready-mixed in Aunt Jemima Pancake Flour. It is the only way to have light, fragrant pancakes like her own with that matchless plantation flavor.

Watch for the little signs of contentment on the faces at table when you first serve Aunt Jemima's pancakes. Plan now to test her famous recipe—ready-mixed. Your grocer has Aunt Jemima Pancake Flour and her Prepared Buckwheat Flour.

Coupons for valuable premiums come in every Aunt Jemima package.

WISE SAYINGS OF MRS. SOLOMON---BY HELEN ROWLAND

MY daughter, if thou wouldst be happily married, I charge thee, seek not to prepare thyself in a School of Domestic Science, but in the School of Experience, which is the Business Office!

For, verily, a damsel that seeth a man only in a dinner coat and his lighter moods hath many shocks awaiting her!

But a Good Stenographer maketh an Ideal Wife. For she hath no sweet dreams to be dispelled, and no romantic visions to be shattered.

And she that weddeth her EMPLOYER shall not stumble! For she knoweth all the signals and the traffic rules and the detours upon the way.

Lo, she hath beheld him in his moments of high pressure and his darkest moods of despair; and she hath no illusions concerning the gentleness of his temper, or his noble ideals or his sweet reasonableness, or his vast and infallible wisdom!

She hath seen him in his "mental shirt-sleeves"; when all his little weaknesses were as obvious as a flapper's knees. And she knoweth at what simple words he is puffed up with vanity and how easily he is cast down by childish trifles.

She hath observed him upon the "morning-after," when he was filled with a dark blue grouch and a dark brown taste, and all the office trembled at his snappings and bellowings. And she knoweth how to tread softly about the raw edges of his nerves and to side-step his wrath.

She hath lied for him over the telephone to the woman who pursued him and to the men who bored him; and fibbed for him to the casual caller. And she knoweth all his ALIBIS by heart and hath all his pat excuses ticketed and filed away in her memory.

She hath discovered the weaknesses of his grammar and his reasoning, and his weakness for a pretty face and a well-turned leg is not hidden from her. And she knoweth just how far to trust him, and when to put the check-rein and the blinders on him.

She hath hearkened unto his golf-ing and his fish-stories; she hath heard him groan with weariness after a Sunday upon the links, and complain to heaven of "overwork" after four hours at luncheon. And she knoweth just how much of all he saith is truth, and how much is "Big Talk."

She hath observed his inability to keep an appointment on the hour, and is aware of his utter indifference to the passing of TIME. And she will not need chiaroyance to tell her when to put the steak in the oven!

Verily, if a damsel can serve as a man's private secretary for one year and still LOVE him, then surely, surely, here is the love that passeth understanding and will endure for ever!

MEDBURY SAYS---

By JOHN P. MEDBURY

SO many wedding journeys have turned out disastrously that thousands of newly married couples are now taking separate honeymoons.

ONE bride and groom went to Niagara Falls and fought so much you'd have thought they were at Battle Creek.

THIS husband said his wife took her mother with them so that if they had a fight she wouldn't have to go home to her.

OF course, the bride and groom quarreled purposely. They didn't want to look like amateurs.

THEY hated to have people think it was the first time they'd been married.

OF course once in a while you find a couple who get along fine. It's beginner's luck.

BUT an experienced bride and groom always expect trouble and they never disappoint each other.

ONE fellow started being nice to his wife and she got suspicious.

HE was so wonderful she thought he was getting ready to leave her.

HE finally got mean again and took a big load off her mind.

SHE said that as soon as he struck her it eased her conscience.

THEY fought all the way to Europe. He says the next time he sails on a wedding journey he's going to hire a battleship.

IF he ever gets married again he's going to let the war department arrange his honeymoon.

ONE couple fought on their wedding trip for business reasons. They'd heard that the first year was the hardest and they wanted to cut the time down to two weeks.

HE was a busy man and knew he wouldn't have time to fight when they got back home.

THEY only planned to be gone ten days, but his wife started a scrap that took three weeks to finish.

THIS extra time cost him six hundred dollars, but he doesn't care, she's going to divorce it from alimony.

AND the longer they stay married, the more interest he'll get.

A HONEYMOON is something that every bride looks forward to, so why should she spoil it by taking the groom along with her?

PIMPLES AND BLACK-HEADS ALL OVER FACE

Was ashamed to be seen—simple remedy brought quick improvement

Munden, Va., Aug. 5—"Awhile ago I began to be troubled with enlarged pores and blackheads. Then pimples developed, and even cysts. My skin was very sore and in a terrible condition. It was so disfigured and unsightly I was ashamed of it. I tried about everything to be had for pimples, but with no good results. I had heard Resinol Ointment and Soap so highly recommended for troubles like mine, I decided to try them. After one treatment there was a decided improvement, and the pimples began to fade away. I advise everybody with skin troubles to try Resinol." (Signed) Miss Hazel Beasley.

BEWARE THE COUGH OR COLD THAT HANGS ON

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist.

Latest 'Corner' Will Hurt Wall Street with Public

By B. C. FORBES

NEW YORK, Feb. 11.—Wall Street has again been up to its old tricks. That is how the public will interpret the "corner" in Wheeling & Lake Erie railroad shares, which skyrocketed from $27.50 to $130 in short order, rising as much as $30 one morning and falling back almost as sensationally by afternoon, to be followed the next day by a collapse of $63 a share, with a rebound a little later of more than $23 a share. The shares of another railroad, Western Maryland, have also been shot up from under $14 to above $44—followed by a tumble to $25 a share.

B. C. Forbes

THESE REGRETTABLE episodes have been caused by the battle now being waged among eastern railway giants to bring about mammoth mergers. L. F. Loree, president of the Delaware & Hudson, is credited with having formed big ambitions not unconnected with the Wheeling & Lake Erie and Western Maryland. But the New York Central, Baltimore & Ohio and the Van Sweringens' Nickel Plate promptly thwarted him by acquiring a controlling amount of stock in the Wheeling & Lake Erie and by upsetting his plans regarding Western Maryland.

These two relatively small railroads are recognized as vitally important pawns in the gigantic chess game now being played by the leading eastern railway systems. Under such circumstances the players think nothing of paying several times what shares may be worth based on their earnings.

AN EXTRAORDINARY feature of these "corners" has come to light. In both cases those who sold the common shares short took it for granted that they could, as provided by the company's terms of issue, transfer preferred shares into the common at any time desired.

Alas, when the squeeze came and efforts were made to make such transfer, it was discovered that neither company was in a position to do so. The startling disclosure was made that the necessary formalities had not been gone through, and that it would be necessary for the directors to authorize the issuance of more common stock and then to get permission from State authorities and from the Interstate Commerce Commission to issue this additional common stock.

Thus the unfortunate shorts found themselves in a desperate plight as quotations for the common shares rose with lightning speed.

Doubtless the courts will be appealed to by shorts who have lost heavily. They feel that they have a grave grievance against those responsible for failing to make it possible for them to transfer preferred stock into common stock without delay.

MEANWHILE, those who sold Wheeling and Lake Erie common shares which they did not own have had to pay through the nose to borrow certificates to deliver. As high as $700 per day for the use of 100 shares has been exacted, a toll never before imposed in the stock market's long history.

SERIOUS THOUGH the loss of millions of dollars has been to those directly involved, the whole episode will have still more serious consequences. It cannot fail to stir up afresh all over the country the old cry that Wall Street is nothing but a colossal gambling den.

Wall Street had been making gratifying progress in improving its reputation with the public. Fruit had been borne by the earnest efforts of the stock exchange governors and others to spread education on the true functions of what is, after all, the largest and most important market-place in the land, absolutely indispensable in our modern scheme of business. Now comes this deplorable blow.

WHO ARE most blameable?

To the outsider it would seem to be the directors of the two railroads who failed to make proper provision for the conversion of their preferred stock into common stock.

Of course, the thing would not have happened had nobody sold short. But short selling is a perfectly legitimate function.

It is inevitable that criticisms will be hurled at the heads of powerful Eastern railroads for fighting among themselves like Kilkenny cats, with such disturbing consequences.

Whether the Stock Exchange authorities could or should have stepped in and stopped the squeeze is open to question.

One thing certain is that incalculable damage has been done.

MOODY'S SEES NO BEAR MART OR TRADE DROP

"The outstanding features of the security markets consist of a further continuance of easy money conditions, the ease with which substantial new offerings have been absorbed, and the improvement in sentiment as a whole," says Moody's.

"The prevailing low money rates, with little prospect of an advance, have encouraged speculation as to a possible reduction of the rediscount rate. The attention of the market is still largely focused upon the rails, and the inauguration of dividends by one of the Western roads has a stimulating effect upon stocks of those roads upon which dividend declarations are anticipated in the near future.

"Trade may be expected to undergo the usual seasonal contraction and to turn somewhat irregular during February.

"We anticipate, however, neither a trade depression nor a bear market in stocks, and any reaction in trade and sympathetic decline in the stock market will be more in the nature of a corrective movement and should pave the way for greater activity later in the year.

"New bond offerings are upon a scale of about twice that of a year ago and account for the slight downward tendency of the bond market.

"We caution against indiscriminate buying of bonds and believe that values rather than yields should be considered."

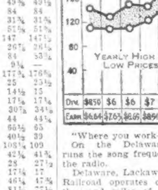
Stock Analysis



"Where you work-a, John?

On the Delaware Lackawanna" runs the song frequently heard over the radio.

Delaware, Lackawanna & Western Railroad operates over nearly one thousand miles of track, its main line extending from New York by way of Binghamton to Buffalo. The company is primarily an anthracite road since coal normally comprises nearly 60 per cent. of all tonnage carried.

Due to efficient management, total operating revenue has been increased more than 50 per cent. during the last ten years. Although operating expenses have also jumped, the company now has a better control over this item.

Consequently net income in 1925 was only $238,673 less than in 1924, despite a reduction of nearly six million dollars in coal revenues, as compared with 1924.

During the first nine months of 1926 net income was equal to $7.96, as compared with earnings of $6.89 per share of capital stock in the corresponding period of 1925.

The company's funded debt is comparatively small, amounting to less than 37 million dollars. At the end of 1925 a profit and loss surplus which exceeded the entire capitalization by almost 50 per cent. was reported. This excess occurred notwithstanding a 100 per cent. stock dividend which had been declared in 1921.

The Delaware, Lackawanna & Western system has been liberal in regard to dividend payments, which have been made at varying rates in every year since 1880. The present rate is 12 per cent., or $6 per share per year.

Wall Street Gossip

REPUBLIC Iron & Steel in 1926 did gross business of $53,890,444, against $53,907,959 in 1925.

UNION Oil of California and owned companies in 1926 earned $3.12 a share on 3,788,618 shares, against $2.78 on 3,780,249 shares in 1925.

PLACING of General Motors on annual $8 dividend basis, forecast in this column, caused advance in shares.

CUBA Co. declared a quarterly dividend of 75 cents on common, payable March 1. Previous quarterly dividend was $1 on common.

State Street Notes

SENECA'S December output was best in company's history.

AT the old Cliff property in Keweenaw county, being reopened by Calumet & Hecla for exploratory purposes, it is expected dewatering of Avery shaft will be started before Spring.

TERRITORY largely unexplored will be opened to include examination of Pheonix lands of Keweenaw Copper Co., part of tract under option by Calumet & Hecla.

COPPER shipments from Lake smelters are considerably better than usual at this time of year. Shipments to the East are abnormally large for this season and more metal is going abroad than during the Summer months.

FANNY Farmer Candy Shops earned $2.95 a share of common in 1926, against $1.70 in 1925.

HOW MANY HOLD ISSUES OF U. S. COMPANIES?

By FRANK H. MELOON, Financial Editor

How many hold stocks or bonds in American corporations? Economists estimate the number at 15,000,000. Taking into account duplication of holdings, Joseph S. McCoy, actuary of the U. S. Treasury, estimates there are not more than 3,000,000 separate individuals who hold stocks and bonds. All this is largely guessing. If you want my guess, it is that Actuary McCoy's estimate is far below the actual number. There are probably millions of holders of small securities, perhaps mostly non-dividend payers, whose names as such would be extremely unlikely to come to attention of the Treasury Department.

Of speculation, Mr. Boody says: "Those who lift the tape the most often have the least money. I have seen the poor, broken devils leaning over the tickers, cold sweat on their foreheads and despair in their hearts, clutching at the tape in the vain hope that luck would be theirs at last.

Modern vacuum cleaners, sold at reasonable prices and on convenient terms for those who need them by stores and public utility companies, have done a great deal toward removing the last vestiges of drudgery from the American household. If you feel any doubt about the passing of the broom, learn that the Eureka Vacuum Cleaner Company did the biggest business in its history during 1926. The company increased its direct sales organization materially during the past year. The increase in price which went into effect November 1, and the very satisfactory preliminary report of January business make the prospects for the year 1927 look the best in its history.

NATIONAL POLICIES OF THE HEARST NEWSPAPERS

1. An agreement of English-speaking peoples to preserve peace among themselves and promote the peace of the world.
2. A constitutional amendment to provide for the election of United States Senators in numbers proportionate to the population of each State, but no State to have less than two Senators. A reapportionment of Congressional representation immediately after every census, or in case of the failure of Congress so to act, to make the apportionment automatic at the end of the first Congressional session, the proportion of population for each representative in each case to be that of the existing Congress.
3. A separate Department of the Army, of the Navy and of the Air Forces, all united under a Secretary of National Defense.
4. Federal action to the limit of Federal Government powers to abolish illiteracy among the people of the United States, and the creation of a Secretary of Education.
5. Necessary measures to secure the election of Congress in November and its installation on the 1st of January following, and the inauguration of a President on the 1st of January immediately following his election in November.

How They Live and Die

That Tells the Story of What They Are

Long after we change in other ways, human beings in various races keep the customs, superstitions and the habits of olden times.

These four pictures show some details in the funeral of one of China's provincial governors.

The Chinese name a learned men, produce able engineers, profound students, the women vote, and some of them are more advanced mentally than our own, and all of them, by the way, dress a great deal more modestly.

PAPER GODS TO PROTECT THE DEAD.

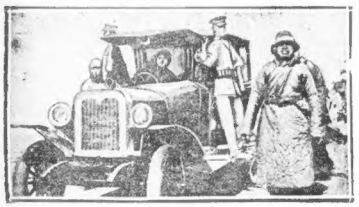
But with them, as with us, death calls up the old superstitions, fears and customs. Looking at these four pictures of a Chinese dignitary's funeral, you get a better idea of the thought underlying old China than you would by reading many books or newspaper articles.



A PAPER CAR TO ACCOMPANY THE DEAD.

First you see carried in the funeral procession gigantic gods made of papier mache. These are supposed to represent and defend the dead man when he appears in the celestial halls for judgment. They take several of these gods along to make sure.

The second picture shows a papier mache car, with a papier mache soldier standing on the side and a papier mache chauffeur, pushed along in the procession. This is supposed to convey the dead governor along the streets of heaven.

The third picture shows a few of many beggars that march in the procession, carrying scrolls setting forth the virtues and good deeds of the dead man. The beggars will get something for their trouble.

SIXTY-FOUR MEN CARRY THE CORPSE.

The last picture shows sixty-four bearers carrying the coffin and the corpse. Sixty-four is the greatest number of bearers that any man in China can have at his funeral unless he belongs to the royal family; then he can have more.

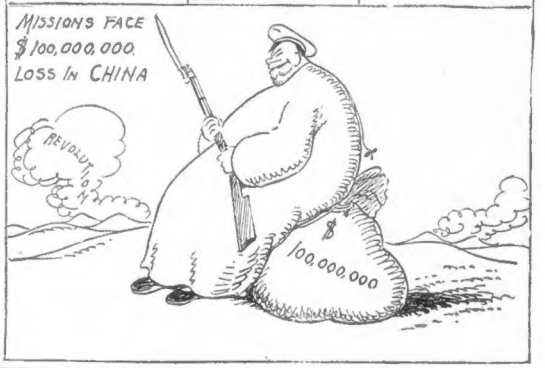
The decorations of the corpse bearers' clothing are emblems of good luck.

And the interesting thing is that in the whole procession the only individual that doesn't and never will know anything about it is the dead man.

Will He Run Again?

Dr. Butler Says President Coolidge Won't Run. Maybe There's a Reason. Many Think He'll Walk in. But It's Too Early to Predict

By T. E. Powers



KNOWLEDGE POWER, SOMETIMES

By DR. FRANK CRANE

KNOWLEDGE is power—sometimes.

It is power only when it is practical knowledge.

The mere acquisition of facts and information may make a man informed, but unless those facts apply to what he undertakes they do not increase his power.

You may learn all the intimate facts about all the Kings of England without helping you appreciably in the cement business.

It may make it easier to live with yourself, but it will not increase your power.

Barrie has a play about a yacht full of educated people which goes aground upon an uninhabited island.

The only man who knows what to do is the uneducated butler.

He builds a shelter and hunts for food while the others stand helpless. What little education he had was of a practical sort that applied to the needs of the moment.

He had power because his knowledge applied there. In a drawing-room conversation the others would have had power because their knowledge fitted the needs of that situation.

Those who speak of the failure of education make the mistake of thinking that power is the only end of knowledge.

Knowledge is of three kinds.

There is knowledge that gives power; knowledge that gives culture; knowledge that gives wisdom.

Knowledge is like the food we take into our systems. Part of this food goes to make flesh, part to make blood and part goes to make the structure of bones.

So only a part of knowledge goes to make power. Some men without any broad education attain positions of great eminence because the narrow range of their information is all practical and applicable to their work.

Another part of knowledge feeds culture. It gives interests and ideas and appreciations that make men's lives more enjoyable and full.

And another part of knowledge gives wisdom. It builds self-control and understanding. A man may be powerful like Alexander the Great, or cultured like Oscar Wilde, and know not the meaning of wisdom.

And as Durant, using the popular adage loosely, says: "Knowledge is power, but only wisdom is liberty."

(Copyright, 1927, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

WORDS OF THE WISE MEN

Every man has just as much vanity as he wants understanding.—Pope.

Everyone's manners make his fortune.—Cornelius Nepos.

He has no hope who never had a fear.—Cowper.

The beginning of all is to have done with Falsity.—Carlyle.

Prudence is of no service unless it be prompt.—Bacon.

Boldness is an ill keeper of promise. —Bacon.

Fear follows crime and is its chastisement. —Voltaire.

Prudery is the hypocrisy of modesty. —Baron Nicolas Massias.

BOSTON DAY BY DAY

APPENDICITIS

WITHIN the week two of the 133 members of the BOSTON STOCK EXCHANGE have been stricken by appendicitis. The attack was fatal in the case of HARRIS G. POOR, a member of the Exchange since 1894, who had offices at No. 53 State street, the home of the Exchange, longer than any but a very few members. The second sufferer was L. SHERMAN ADAMS, and his friends will be pleased to know he is expected to be able to leave the hospital this week.

CRY BABIES

"A pickpocket is below through and through when it comes to a showdown," in the opinion of INSPECTOR JAMES H. EGAN of BOSTON police headquarters detective bureau. "They have gall enough and will go into a man's pocket in the most brazen manner, but let that man turn on them and watch them squeal for mercy. I have yet to see a pickpocket who will not cry baby when he is caught.

ADVICE

BOWEN TUFTS, BOSTON banker and business man, gives this advice to young men seeking success: "Depend always on your own efforts. Acquire a large number of desirable associates, allow your contact with them to mould your character toward success. Plan a schedule of effort that will not overtax your strength, but yet which is worth while."

COUSIN TO COOLIDGE

Remember the lines "cousins, you can count 'em by the dozens," in "The Mikado" opera? PRESIDENT COOLIDGE has numerous cousins in the limelight, none perhaps more so than RICHARD B. COOLIDGE, MEDFORD ex-Mayor, who is president of the First National Bank of Medford. This is one of the newest banks in the Commonwealth, organized the middle of last November.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

EDNA has been telling me how nervous she is. It's a terrible affliction, nervousness like that. According to Edna, it has simply blighted her life.

It began when she was a little teeny, weeny bit of a girl and "used to go to pieces over the least little thing." Her mother told her she took after her side of the family—they were all "so high strung." There'd been an actor in mother's family and an elocution teacher and a music teacher. With an inheritance like that, Edna was bound to be different from other people. That's why she went to pieces so easily—said Mother. She was ever so sympathetic whenever Edna had one of her nervous spells.

As the years went on, Edna needed all the sympathy and understanding Mother could give her for, alas, so many people gave her none at all. They actually said she "could control herself if she wanted to." As if anyone could control a dreadful thing like Nervousness which they had inherited from goodness knows how many ancestors! But people didn't stop to think about Edna's highly temperamental family tree. They just said she was "cornery" and treated her as rudely as possible.

Called "Cry Baby."

The little girls at school laughed at her and called her "cry baby." The little boys made faces at her and said she was a stuck-up tattle tale. And after she had graduated from High and went to work in Wilson's Confectionery, old man Wilson fired her because he said he "was too lazy to earn her salt. Mother had a lot of explaining to do before she could make people understand that the Poor Dear Child was "simply sick from nervousness."

Explanations, however, didn't succeed in holding Edna's husband, after she married. He stood Edna's "spells" and then suddenly decamped for parts unknown. And Edna had a very noisy and prolonged case of Nervous Prostration. So now, at thirty-five, Edna is the most miserable woman of my acquaintance. And though she won't like it, I think she needs to hear about Samuel Such and his Wax Nose.

Samuel Such was the hero of a short but very pithy tale by Walter de la Mare. When Sam was a tiny new baby his doting father and mother gave him a wonderful christening party and invited the fondest and best. But unfortunately they forgot to invite wicked old great-aunt Kerenhappuch and that's where the trouble began.

Bit of Spleen.

The malicious old lady came anyway and made things as disagreeable as possible. As a final bit of spleen she took wee Sammy's mother aside and informed her, in a blood-curdling whisper, THAT THE BABY'S NOSE WAS MADE OF WAX!!! Mama Such promptly fainted and there was a dreadful to-do.

Papa Such at first pooh-poohed the idea but when they examined the small child's nose they could no longer doubt the dreadful fact. For, as you will know if you have ever inspected the nose of any little human person, it was entirely lacking in all respectable nose-like properties, and was indeed of the formless, white softness of WAX!

From that day on Sammy was shielded as befits one whose central features were made of so frail and perishable a substance as wax.

No diamond or ruby was ever tended more carefully than was Sammy's nose. He was never taken into the strong sunlight—he was never allowed to sit too near the fire. He could not play the rough games which other little boys played, nor could he do the tiresome chores which they performed.

"Poor little Sam," says the story, "from his earliest days grew up in the belief that there was something amiss with him; that he had been somehow set apart by ill-fortune from all other small creatures of his age."

Which was, of course, very sad. But, nevertheless, it had its compensations, for it made Samuel exempt from many difficult tasks and trying responsibilities. Until at last there arrived an amazing day when Sam discovered that HIS NOSE WASN'T MADE OF WAX AFTER ALL BUT WAS, IN FACT, EXACTLY LIKE ALL OTHER NOSES! And if you've lived a long life under the comfortable delusion that you were "different" from everyone else you can imagine how exasperating such a discovery might me.

That is the story. It has a wonderful moral in it for High Strung People. And Sensitive People — and Timid People—and all other folks with WAX NOSES which they are carefully cherishing.
